At Seeta Boarding Primary School, there were two friends called Labeja and Ogenrwot. They both lived in a village called Kamonkoli. When the school closed for holidays, they went to the bus stage together. They each bought a ticket and entered the bus. While Labeja was putting his luggage on the rack, his ticket fell out of his pocket onto the floor of the bus.

Ogenrwot saw it and picked it up but did not say anything about it to his friend.

The drive started the engine and the bus conductor started checking passengers' tickets. Labeja searched his pockets but could not find his ticket. Ogenrwot said nothing. The conductor came nearer and Labeja had no option but to himself under his seat.

When the conductor came to Ogenrwot, Ogenrwot handed him two tickets and said, "This ticket is mine and the other one belongs to my friend Labeja who likes traveling under the seat."
