At Wakikere Boarding Primary School, there were two friends called Kasepiki and Musota. They both lived in a village called Lumuli. When the school closed for the holidays, they went to the bus stage together. They each bought a ticket and entered the bus.

While Kasepiki was putting his luggage on the rack, his ticket fell out of his pocket onto the floor of the bus. Musota saw it and picked it up but did not say anything about it to his friend.

The bus started moving and the bus conductor started checking passengers' tickets. Kasepiki searched his pockets but could not find his ticket. Musota said nothing. The conductor came nearer and Kasepiki had no option but to hide himself under his seat.

When the conductor came to Musota, Musota handed him two tickets and said "This ticket is mine and the other one belongs to my friend Kasepiki who likes traveling under the seat." The conductor smiled and the other passengers laughed at Kasepiki.
